

HANDSFREE

Harness Advanced

Sacci Harness Advanced is a versatile harness adapted for heavier loads or where you as a user work with your equipment for long periods.

The harness is designed to distribute the load evenly over the entire system. The inside is made of 3D mesh for good ventilation against the body and the outside is made of durable polyester fabric to withstand the toughest environments. You easily adjust the size and position of the front plate with four different straps.

The front plate is designed to attach many different units of varying size and weight, such as a computer, PDA or control unit. The system with aluminium rails ensures that the load is spread from the unit bracket and front to the upper part of the harness in a very good and very ergonomic way.

Sacci also has its own development and production of unit-holders if needed for specially designed customization.
